Imagine a fearful dog wearing its muzzle and gaining happy confidence as she zooms around agility poles. Or the shy dog running toward the muzzle from across the room because she has learned the muzzle is rewarding and safe.

Let's take away the prejudice. The Muzzle Up! Workshop taught by founder Maureen Backman will cover the how-to's of muzzle training by incorporating tricks, games and activities so dogs feel comfortable and happy wearing a muzzle. We'll discuss how to tailor your dog's muzzle training for specific situations, like the veterinary office or leash walking.

We want our dogs to trust us and we don't want them to be afraid of us. With proper training, you and your dog can enjoy more trust in each other and experience activities you may have otherwise avoided or dreaded.

Maureen Backman, MS, CTC, PCT-A, is the founding director of The Muzzle Up! Project. Muzzle Up! is a proactive, positive approach to helping people and pet professionals become less reactive and more responsive when working with dogs. The Muzzle Up! Project has three goals: advocacy, education and training. Maureen has a master's degree in rehabilitation psychology from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, is an honor graduate from Jean Donaldson's Academy for Dog Trainers and is certified by the Pet Professional Guild. She owns Mutt About Town located in the San Francisco Bay Area and specializes in working with fearful dogs.
